FIND BOMB IN NEW LOMITA HOME

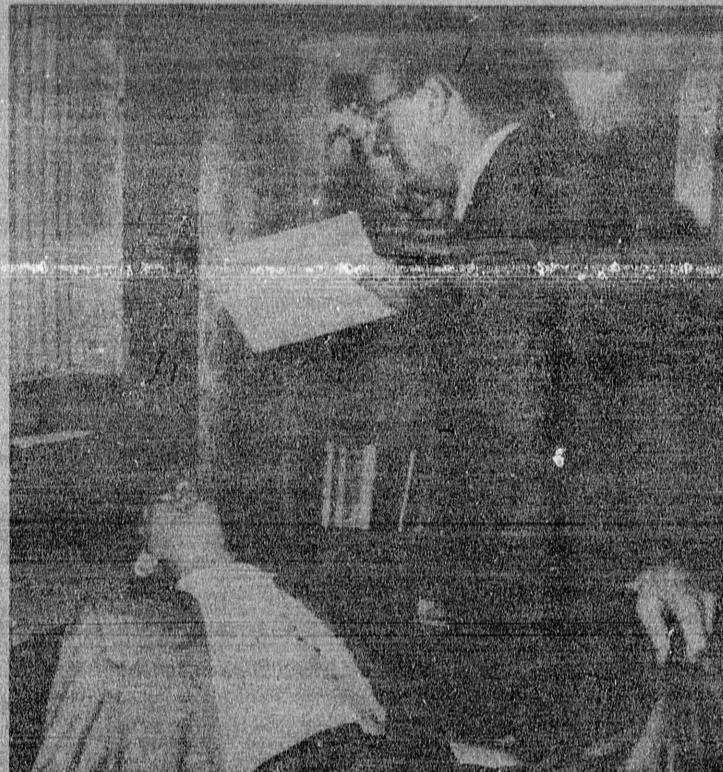

A Penny
for your Thoughts

What do you think of the Midnight Sale to be held in Downtown Torrance next Saturday night and are you going to participate?
This question was asked six people in the area. Their answers appear with the pictures below.

Morris Hattam, Baker Furniture Store
Downtown
Torrance:
"I'll be here
right in my store. I think this event will be a big stimulus for the Downtown Torrance merchants. It will also be good for the community and the shoppers will get some outstanding values."

Mrs. Cora Scheffer, 1911
Gramercy.
housewife:
"I like the idea of a midnight shopping spree. It is a novel idea and we plan to go down and see what is going on. We will take our purses with us, too."

Mrs. Nettie Sandman, 2309
Carson. Tor-
rance artist:
"I think the idea is good and I plan to be there Saturday night.
We generally go to every civic event in Torrance I like the idea of shopping at 12 midnight. I usually stay up at night and do my painting.

WAKE UP, MAN! . . . School Superintendent J. H. Hull tries to revive James E. Cracked, director for new construction for Torrance schools, who just discovered that enrollment in the schools next fall will be up more than 2100—the equivalent of three new elementary schools. The district is holding a special bond election on Oct. 16 to provide the money for needed new schools to that double session problems can be eliminated.

Favorable School Bond Vote Needed Badly, Officials Say

The stark has brought Torrance school officials a lot of small problems, but the two is that those small problems are constantly getting bigger.

Tabulation of the latest enrollment figures shows that kindergartners (class of '71) outnumber eighth graders (class of '68) by 2 to 1 and the present high school seniors (class of '59) by 4 to 1. What these figures mean to the school is more buildings, more teachers, more books, more supplies and in fact more of almost everything.

IN TERMS OF next fall's

Ray Gooch, 21508 Ellenwood Dr., retired:
"I am not sure I will be there for the midnight sale
home or not.
I think it is a good thing though it will be good for the people shopping and will drive up business for the stores."

Mrs. Ana Hight, 23013 Allington, Adjutant Club hostess:
"Why not?
I think a midnight shopping event will be nice and different. I like new things for Torrance, the
All-American
City."

Angelo Belantis, 2427 Torrance Blvd.,
Torrance park
employee:
"My wife and I will go to the midnight shopping deal Saturday night. We'll buy some things too. I think it is a good idea to help crowds and the community."

WITHOUT CAREFUL planning, these schools will get bigger and more crowded faster than other elementary schools. That creates particular problems for Dr. Warren Hamilton, director of special services, who must figure where the children go to school and James E. Cracked, director of new construction, who must see that new facilities are built.

In some areas, the baby problem is even knottier. Although district-wide kindergartners outnumber eighth graders by 2 to 1, some areas show an even larger ratio. At Flavian School, the ratio is 5 to 1; at Anza and Calle Meyer Schools, it is 4 to 1. By per cent larger than to at Sepulveda and Steele Schools, it is 3 to 1.

BUILDING OFFICIALS have put up 24 new schools during the past 11 years and anticipate a number of new ones by the time Torrance has gained all the children that its homes and apartments will hold by 1966.

Crash Victim Dies

Ronald D. Gibb, 23, of Compton, who was injured in a traffic collision near Pacific Coast Hwy. and Hawthorne Ave. Sept. 7, died Friday to become the city's fifth traffic fatality of 1952.

SIX YOUNG rattlers have been located and killed in the swamp area west of the Southwest Park residential section of the city during the past several days, South Bay officers reported.

FOOTPRINTS indicating that youngsters had been in the area were found near the Howard Wood School site.

Sgt. Delivers Baby In Car

A San Francisco soldier, Sgt. Lester C. Walters, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Walters, of 21305 Anza Ave., delivered a newborn baby boy in the back seat of a neighbor's car last week.

Specialist Walters and his wife, Kisko, were en route to Letterman Army Hospital when car trouble necessitated calling into service the automobile of a neighbor. The birth of their third child took place in the latter vehicle. After receiving emergency treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital, San Francisco, Mrs. Walters and baby were transferred to Letterman Army Hospital.

Plans to exchange greetings and information with officials from Turkey were made. It is primarily on social discussion this week after local community noted for its Torrance members of a citizen group picked the Konya East city as a sister city for a cultural exchange program.

The city, located in south central Turkey, is an elevation of approximately 2300 feet, chosen because it is about the same size as Torrance.

Konya craftsmen are noted throughout Turkey for their skills in woodcarving and hand-painted wooden spoons of the city are a tradition in Historically, Konya is one Turkey and a favorite tourist city for the American tourist. One can see some of the finest examples of art which inspired the saying "See all the world in Konya." The city is part of a program sponsored by the U. S. Information Agency and is designed to aid in the fight against communism.

TO SAVE either overcrowding or the expense of hiring another teacher, some of the seventh and eighth graders are placed in one classroom, making three classes instead of four.

If one additional teacher was hired at each school to handle an odd number of students, the cost to taxpayers would be more than $200,000 a year, the spokesman said.

"The method of grouping

how the teacher instructs three grades.

Combined Classes Explained

School officials answered critics of the combined classrooms in many of the schools this year by pointing out that the program effected a savings of $200,000 in teaching salaries.

A total of 130 combined classes of two and three grades has been set up this year out of a total of 582 elementary level classrooms.

The Little Red School house program in operation for the past three years at Walteria Elementary School, was continued at Walteria and grades are combined in one classroom.

THE GRADES are combined

when enrollments in classes are such that it is impractical to have as one unit or split four into two.

Police Ponder Motive

Discovery of a professionally made time bomb in one of the houses under construction in the Starlite Home tract at 1619 Gramercy Ave. brought three construction workers into near panic this week. The bomb was found by one of the workers on the project.

Joseph Wisniewski, foreman, for the Echo Electric Co. of Gardena, found the bomb while wiring a front door communication speaker located in the kitchen of the house Wednesday afternoon.

The ingenious bomb was made of a plumber's pipe nipple capped on both ends. Holes were drilled in the pipe connecting the wires to a detonation cap. The lead wires were hooked to the communication system. The sixinch pipe was loaded with cotton soaked with an explosive chemical.

Police said the bomb was capable of demolishing the house and killing any occupants after the current was turned on and the front door button pushed.

Wisniewski, who told the HERALD it was his custom to test these units after they were installed, added that when he pulled the wires out of the speaker recess the attached pipe was seen. It had been resting between two walls about waist high.

Demolition squad officers said no apparent motive for the bomb being in the structure had been found by investigating deputy sheriffs.

Brothers Try Draw, One Shot

A 12-year-old lad was wounded seriously here Friday when he and an older brother tried to make a "quick draw" with a loaded 22 revolver.

Rushed to Harbor General Hospital was Randy E. Reichel, 16, of 605 W. Ocean Ave. He was reported in serious condition.

Randy was shot in the right chest in the family's trailer court home, deputies reported. His brother, Lynn, 17, told Sheriff's officers that he and Randy had been practicing their draw with the gun which belonged to their parents.

Lynn said the gun was empty while he and Randy were practicing their draw, but that they decided to load it before putting it away.

He quoted his younger brother then of saying, "Draw just once more."

Forgetting that he had just loaded the gun, Lynn spun around and pulled the trigger, hitting Randy, who slumped to the floor.

Man Given Jail Term For Attack

Superior Judge Ralph K. Pierson ordered a six-month County jail term for Jack Lytle, 18, of 15332 Chamerz Ave., Gardena, who was convicted of attempted forcible rape.

Lytle was also put on five year probation for the assault on a 16-year-old married Torrance woman.

The victim testified Lytle beat her so both eyes were blackened, her nose and ears bruised and her lips swollen, in Palos Verdes hills June 20.

Lytle was also found guilty of attempted forcible rape.

He was sentenced to the state prison for 10 years.
